

NOTES ON THE CONTRIBUTORS / NOTAS SOBRE LOS AUTORES
(in order of appearance/en orden de aparición)

□ Emilio Crenzel

is Sociologist and lecturer at the University of Buenos Aires, and researcher at the CONICET (Consejo Nacional de Investigaciones Científicas y Técnicas). His field of research has been centered in social memory of the recent past in Argentina and the most recent publications are: La historia política del Nunca Más: La memoria de las desapariciones en Argentina (2008), as well as a series of articles on the same theme in, for example, the journal Estudios Interdisciplinarios de América Latina y el Caribe (2006), 17(2).

□ Mats Lundahl

is Professor of Development Economics at the Stockholm School of Economics. He has published some eighty articles on Haiti and three books: Peasants and Poverty: A Study of Haiti (1979), The Haitian Economy: Man, Land and Markets (1983) and Politics or Markets? Essays on Haitian Underdevelopment (1992). His book with Louis Carl Saint Jean, Issa El Saieh: Maestro and Legend. A Portrait of My Pal, His Times and His Music, will appear in the fall of 2010.

□ Marie Freckleton

is senior lecturer in the Department of Economics, University of the West Indies, Mona campus, Jamaica. Her research interests are Caribbean economic development and international trade policy. Recent publications include: "North-South Free Trade Agreements: Implications for CARICOM", Regional Development Studies (2007), 11 and "Foreign Direct Investment, Absorptive Capacity and Economic Growth in Jamaica", Global Development Studies (2007), 4(3-4).

□ Flavia Echánove Huacuja

is Professor and researcher at Instituto de Geografía, Universidad Nacional Autónoma de México. She obtained a PhD in Anthropology, Universidad Autónoma Metropolitana, Mexico. Her recent publications include: "Abriendo Fronteras: El Auge Exportador del Aguacate Mexicano a Estados Unidos" Anales de Geografía (2008), 28(1) and "Políticas Públicas y Maíz en México: El Esquema de Agricultura por Contrato", Anales de Geografía (2009), 29(2).

□ Josefa Ramoni Perazzi

is Professor of quantitative methods at the University of Los Andes, Mérida, Venezuela. She specializes in econometric methods and labor economics. Among her recent publications are Compensation Comparisons between Sectors in the US: A Propensity Score Matching Approach (2008) as well as several papers regarding compensations and working conditions at universities in Venezuela. She is currently working on methods to measure informal employment in Venezuela and technical efficiency of wages in that country.

□ Live Danbolt Drange

is Associate Professor at NLA University College (Norsk Lærerakademi) in Norway. Her research area is religion and educational themes in the Andes, especially in Bolivia and Ecuador. Her recent publications include "Intercultural Education in the Multicultural and Multilingual Bolivian Context", Intercultural Education (forthcoming), 22(2); "Urbefolkningsmobilisering og revitalisering av andinsk religiøsitet i et misjonsvitenskapelig perspektiv", Norsk tidsskrift for misjonsvitenskap (2008), 3, and "Power in Intercultural Education: Education in Bolivia: From Oppression to Liberation?", Journal of Intercultural Communication (2007), 15.

□ Maria-Therese Gustafsson

is PhD-candidate at the department of political science, Stockholm University. She has been affiliated with the Institute of Latin American Studies (LAIS), Stockholm University. During her fieldwork she was affiliated with the Instituto de Estudios Peruanos, Lima, as a guest researcher. In her dissertation project she analyses how citizenship is constituted in conflicts surrounding extractive industries in Peru. Through different constellations of relations between local populations, transnational corporations and the state, the institutions, and practices of citizenship are redefined and partly denationalized.